

Community-Supported Agriculture at the Farm of Peace

“For most of human history, people have been connected with the land that sustains them”

~ Robyn VanEn

What is a CSA?

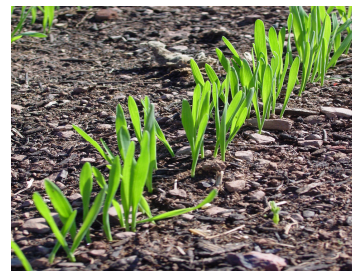

It is agriculture that supports the growth of communities. The direct relationship reciprocates support between the producer and consumer. The growers provide quality food grown in a manner that is enriching for the environment. The customer provides a guaranteed outlet and financial support for the food produced. Together they create a supply and demand that fosters a sustainable and healing food production system.

We invite you to join the CSA, to enjoy more than just an abundance of healthy produce, but to experience the connection it offers, enjoy the pictures, the recipes, and the local farm news. As you enjoy your share of the harvest, your heart can rest in knowing it was grown with love and care for this creation.

Join our CSA for the 2012 Spring and Summer Seasons~ Now is the time to reserve your share!

With your Farm of Peace CSA share you will eat with the seasons. I understand that as a CSA member, I am sharing the rewards and risks along with the farmer. Unseasonable weather and other problems may affect how much of a given item can be delivered. There are no refunds, as the money goes to pay for materials and time to plant, maintain and harvest the garden for the season.

I understand that the Farm cannot save or store my weekly delivery and I am responsible to pick it up or arrange for a friend to get my share; any shares not picked up will be distributed to a needy person unless I call the Farm to make arrangements.
